Hedge Plant Spacing

In general evergreen hedging is planted at a rate of 1-3 plants per metre. This can be varied according to your requirements and budget but works as a general rule. If you plant closer than this you will not see any benefit for the extra spend. If you plant further apart it will take much longer for the hedge to develop and may not create an effective barrier.

we recommend using rootgrow™ when planting all root-balled plants

Take advantage of some great prices this season - Place your order now!

Unlike containerised plants, root-ball (and bare root plants) are only available between November and March (subject to prevailing weather conditions). During this dormant period they can be lifted directly out of the ground to order and supplied ready to plant. This traditional seasonal planting method is less expensive than planting with container stock and so represents a really cost effective way of planting hedging.

For more detailed information about root-ball and bare root hedging plants with guidance on how to plant and care for them, please ask for a leaflet or go to our website.

We guarantee to supply you with the highest quality plants. It should be noted however that due to the nature of the production method of these plants, we always advise that customers anticipate a certain degree of loss after planting. In our experience a 5% failure rate should be considered when purchasing root-ball or bare root stock.

All prices correct at time of print. These prices may be subject to change and all offers are subject to availability, minimum orders and delivery costs.

If you need help choosing your hedging or require a quote for delivery or planting we are happy to help.
